

City of Durham Parish Council Dignity at Work Policy

1. Purpose and scope

1.1 Statement

In support of our value to respect others, the City of Durham Parish Council will not tolerate bullying or harassment by, or of, any of its employees, officials, Members, contractors, visitors to the council or members of the public from the community which we serve.

The City of Durham Parish Council is committed to the elimination of any form of intimidation in the workplace. This policy reflects the spirit in which the council intends to undertake all of its business and outlines the specific procedures available to employees and members in order to protect them from bullying and harassment. It should be read in conjunction with the adopted Members' Code of Conduct.

The council will issue this policy to all employees as part of their induction and to all Members. The council may also wish to share this policy with contractors, visitors and members of the public.

1.2 Definitions

Bullying

"Bullying may be characterised as a pattern of offensive, intimidating, malicious, insulting or humiliating behaviour; an abuse of this use of power or authority which tends to undermine an individual or a group of individuals, gradually eroding their confidence and capability, which may cause them to suffer stress."

Harassment

Harrassment is "unwanted conduct that violates a person's dignity or creates an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment. This usually covers, but is not limited to, harassment on the grounds of sex, marital status, sexual orientation, race, colour, nationality, ethnic origin, religion, belief, disability or age".

These definitions are derived from the ACAS guidance on the topic.

Bullying and harassment are behaviours which are unwanted by the recipient. They are generally evidenced by a pattern of conduct, rather than being related to one-off incidents. Bullying and harassment in the workplace can lead to poor morale, low productivity and poor performance, sickness absence, mental health issues, lack of respect for others, turnover, damage to the council's reputation and ultimately, legal proceedings against the council and payment of legal fees and potentially unlimited compensation.

1.3 Examples of unacceptable behaviour are as follows (this list is not exhaustive):

spreading malicious rumours, insulting someone, ridiculing or demeaning someone, exclusion or victimisation, unfair treatment, overbearing supervision or other misuse of position or power, unwelcome sexual advances, making threats about job security, making threats of physical violence against a person or their family, deliberately undermining a competent worker by overloading work and/or constant criticism, blaming a person for others' mistakes, preventing an individual's promotion or training opportunities.

Bullying and harassment may occur face-to-face, in meetings, through written communication, including electronic communication such as e-mail or on social media or by telephone. It may occur on or off work premises, during work hours or non-work time.

1.4 Penalties

Bullying and harassment by any employed persons can be considered examples of serious misconduct which will be dealt with through the council's disciplinary procedures at gross misconduct level and may result in summary dismissal from the council.

If elected members are bullying or harassing employees, contractors, fellow councillors, or others then a referral through the standards process in place at the time reported as a contravention of the Member's Code of Conduct could be an appropriate measure. If an employee is experiencing bullying or harassment from a third party the council will act reasonably in upholding its duty of care towards its own employees. In extreme cases, harassment can constitute a criminal offence and the council should take appropriate legal advice, sometimes available from the council's insurer, if such a matter arises.

1.5 The Legal position

Councils have a duty of care towards all their workers and liability under common law arising out of the Employment Rights Act 1996 and the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974. If an employer fails to act reasonably with regard to this duty of care by allowing bullying or harassment to continue unchallenged an employee may decide to resign and claim 'constructive dismissal' at an Employment Tribunal.

Under the Equality Act 2010 bullying or harassment related to one of the protected characteristics covered by the act (age, gender, marital status, sexual orientation, race, religion, belief, colour, disability) can be considered unlawful discrimination which could lead to an Employment Tribunal claim for discrimination against the corporate employer, the council and the perpetrator(s) as individual named respondents.

The legal definition of "Third Party Harassment" has been introduced which makes the employer vicariously liable for harassment from other parties such as parishioners, contractors etc and it must take reasonable steps to manage such situations which could include seeking legal redress on behalf of an employee or member of the council.

In addition, the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 and Protection from Harassment Act 1997 created a criminal offence of harassment with a fine and/or prison sentence as a penalty and a right to damages for the victim. A harasser may be personally liable to pay damages if a victim complains to an Employment Tribunal on the grounds of discrimination. The 1997 Act was originally designed to assist in stalking situations but case law has demonstrated that it can be relevant to employment disputes. For instance: employers can be vicariously liable for harassment received in the workplace, where the conduct is viewed as 'serious', or oppressive incidents which are separated by long time periods and that damages for personal injury and distress can be awarded under the act.

2. Process for dealing with complaints of bullying and harassment

2.1 Informal approach

Anyone (employee, contractor, member or visitor) who feels he or she is being bullied or harassed should try to resolve the problem informally, in the first instance. It may be sufficient to explain to the person(s) involved in the unwanted behaviour, or an intermediary, that their conduct is unacceptable, offensive or causing discomfort. Anyone concerned about being bullied or harassed is encouraged to maintain a journal or other record of the incidents.

2.2 Formal approach

2.2.1 Employees

Where the employee feels unable to resolve the matter informally any complaint about harassment or bullying can be raised confidentially and informally, initially with the chairman of the staffing committee or another member of the staffing committee if more appropriate. It may be appropriate for the complaint to be put in writing after the initial discussion, as this will enable the formal grievance procedure to be invoked. The employee will be expected to provide evidence of the conduct about which he or she is complaining.

2.2.2 Others

Any other party to the council, other than an employee, who feels he or she is being bullied or harassed should raise their complaint with the council, where possible, if an informal notification to a member has been unsuccessful at eliminating the problem. The complaint should then be investigated and a meeting held to discuss the facts and recommend the way forward. A member of the public who feels he or she has been bullied or harassed by any members or officers of a council should use the council's official complaints procedure. It is important that the member(s) being complained about do not prevent the council operating impartially in its investigation and decision-making in this regard.

2.3 Grievance – employees only

A meeting to discuss the complaint with the aggrieved party will normally be arranged within five working days of a written complaint being received and will be held under the provisions of the council's grievance procedure. This meeting will be to discuss the issues raised and a way forward for the member(s) of staff involved. Employees have a right to be accompanied by a work colleague or a trade union representative at this meeting.

A full investigation of the complaint will be held by an appropriate person as appointed by the staffing committee of the council which is handling the process.

It may be appropriate for an external investigator to be involved in order to maintain objectivity and impartiality.

An action plan should be made available to the aggrieved employee to demonstrate how the problem is to be resolved.

It may be decided that mediation or some other intervention is required and the council should contact NALC, an employer's body or ACAS to this effect.

The employee will have a right of appeal. At all times, the confidentiality of the grievance will be of paramount importance in order to maintain trust in the process hence details of the full grievance will not be shared with the full council without prior approval by the aggrieved. The council will commit not to victimise the complainant for raising the complaint once the appropriate dispute resolution process has been concluded.

2.4 Disciplinary action

Following a grievance hearing or investigation into allegations of bullying or harassment against an employee, a full report will be made to all parties and this may result in disciplinary action being taken against the perpetrator of the alleged action/behaviour.

For an employee found to have been bullying/harassing others this will follow the council's disciplinary procedure under the ACAS Code of Practice on Dispute Resolution and would normally be treated as gross misconduct.

For members reasonably believed to have been bullying or harassing another person(s) whilst undertaking council activities, a referral to the County Council's standards process should be made. Neither the Parish Council as a corporate body nor any of its employees/members may seek to replace the standards process in any way.

There may also be a referral to the police under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, or a claim to an Employment Tribunal for Third Party harassment (for harassment relating to one of the protected characteristics under the Equality Act) in the most extreme cases. This list is not exhaustive.

False or malicious allegations of harassment or bullying which damage the reputation of a fellow employee/member will not be tolerated and will be dealt with as serious misconduct under disciplinary procedures (for employees) and/or a referral to the standards process (for members).

All parties to the council have a responsibility to ensure that their conduct towards others does not harass or bully or in any way demean the dignity of others. If unacceptable behaviour is observed then each individual can challenge the perpetrator and ask them to stop.

Bullying is more likely to be complained about when individual members criticise staff, often without objective evidence, without the mandate from the corporate body of the council and in environments which are open to the public or other employees or by way of blogs, Facebook comments, or in the pub or local playground. The council undertakes to share its policy with all members and workers and request that each party signs to demonstrate acceptance of its terms. All new members and employees will be provided with a copy of this policy.
